GLoucester County New Jersey Brownfields Site Goes Solar

RT Environmental Services, Inc. Announces

In a Philadelphia Inquirer article on October 21st, it was announced that a brownfields site on Mantua Grove Road at I-295 in West Deptford Township, New Jersey is going solar, and 21 acres will be converted to solar energy production.

Historically, Huntsman manufactured polypropylene materials at the site. The site was purchased by Preferred Unlimited a number of years ago for redevelopment.

New Jersey's energy laws allow flexibility, as to delivery of solar energy produced at sites, to nearby users. Johnson Matthey, a respected worldwide producer of special metal materials and other products, is a long time employer in Gloucester County, New Jersey, so the ability to use less expensive energy is clearly a plus. The solar field will be constructed and operated by Constellation Energy.

RT Environmental Services, Inc. (RT) completed environmental due diligence, and assisted with environmental services, during demolition of the former large industrial buildings at the site.
